8. On 5 October, the Herrenkrug Kaserne was occupied almost to capacity. Eleven T-34/85 tanks, [redacted] and about 50 sidecar motorcycles were in the barracks area, and 10 trucks on blocks were in a shed.

9. On 5 October, the Flak Kaserne and the Encke Kaserne were lightly occupied, while the Seeckt Kaserne was occupied by a rear detail.¹

10. At 4:15 p.m. on 8 October, a train carrying about 40 trucks and 10 jeeps [redacted] and including several boxcars was seen at the Biedertza railroad station, headed toward Magdeburg and ready to leave. The vehicles looked clean.

11. On 8 October, each one empty train of about 20 flatcars and several boxcars was assembled at the Koenigsborn, Proedel and Gueterglueck railroad stations in the afternoon.

12. Between 24 September and 4 October, an emplacement with 85-mm AA guns, a range finder, 3 searchlights, and 1 radar mounted on a truck was seen east of the Flak Kaserne. A command post with radar sets and direction finder station was about 250 meters northeast of the emplacement. On 2 October, source observed an exercise, which was directed by a general and was held near the emplacement. About 30 field-grade officers were seen at the command post. Three U-2 biplanes, which circled over the command post at an altitude of 700 to 2000 meters and at distance of 4 to 5 km represented the enemy aircraft. Fire was opened by the built-in 85-mm AA guns and was joined by the 76-mm AA guns. A low-level attack was answered by concentric fire by all guns, including the 37-mm AA guns. Subsequently, a field exercise was conducted in the training area, in which a strip of terrain was to be defended. Upon completion of the field exercises, about 60 officers and about 500 troops of the AAA units, carrying full pack including steel helmets and rolled blankets and armed with carbines and submachine guns, participated in a cross-country run. The exercise terminated at about 4 p.m. Between 24 September and 4 October, troops received instruction on 10 x 85 mm AA guns, 15 x 76-mm AA guns and 15 x 37-mm AA guns in the area of the Flak Kaserne. Trucks [redacted]

25X1A. [redacted] Comment. The headquarters units of the Third Shock Army and the units of the 19th Gds Mecz Div, which had participated in the known exercises of the Third Shock Army, probably returned to the post prior to 9 October, so that, after 9 October, the Encke Kaserne and the Herrenkrug Kaserne can be carried occupied as prior to the beginning of the exercises. See [redacted], and [redacted] until 5 October 1953. No definite information has been obtained on the occupation of the Nachrichten Kaserne. Although the installation presumably was occupied not to capacity prior to 9 October, it is believed that, after the arrival there of advance details and a tank shipment, presumably of the 63d Gds Mecz Regt of the abovementioned division, the installation was at least partially occupied, which is also indicated by the preparations for an occupation observed on and after 5 October. Elements of the division were, however, believed to be still at Letzling Heath, according to a report of 7 October. [redacted] according to information in the present report, the 36th Pan Bridge Regt of the GDFG had not yet arrived at the post by 9 October.

25X1A 2. [redacted] Comment. The trains may have carried units of the 10th Gds Tank Div, which, according to reports on transportation, on 7 trains transferred to Brandenburg from Letzling Heath.
